Why H. S. Stout Succeeds.

Here are a few reasons why H. S. Stout has succeeded in building up the largest tailoring business in Paris:

FIRST—He recognized the fact that five years ago that the only day of big profits and small sales was past.

SECOND—He cut the price of tailor-made garments at least 40 PER CENT.

THIRD—He kept up the quality of his materials, his styles and his workmanship.

FOURTH—He always does as he advertised.

AS A RESULT.

As a result of this system he has built up a large trade that appreciates the fact that they save twenty dollars on a single suit or overcoat. "Many customers at a small profit rather than a few customers at a big profit," says H. S. Stout.

If you want credit, your high-price tailor gladly extends it, for he makes you pay dearly for it in the end.

Why not turn over a new leaf—wear the best, save money, by giving H. S. Stout a trial?

He makes the Finest Imported Suits for $30.00 AND $35.00.

A SECOND GUSTER MASSACRE.

Gen. Bacon and His Little Band of Santiago Regulars Reported Wiped out of Existence.

A Fierce Battle With Indians in the Wilderness of Northern Minnesota on Wednesday.

Known That Many Were Killed on Both Sides—Failure to Hear From the Troops Ominous—Reinforcements Ordered Sent By Alger—Indians Claimed to Have Been Cheated By the Government and Are Revenged.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—An unfounded rumor has reached here that the soldiers and Gen. Bacon have been massacred by the Indians at Leech lake. A Brainerd operator says this reported massacre is true.

WALKER, Minn., Oct. 6.—A hard fight with the Indians occurred Wednesday and the reports from the scene of the battle on the other side of Leech lake are somewhat conflicting, although all reports agree that the result has been considerable shedding of blood and some loss of life on both sides.

No word has come from the front for several hours, which fact is considered somewhat ominous. The most serious report is that the detachment of troops with Gen. Bacon was massacred, the general himself being said to be among the dead.

Three newspaper correspondents, Brill, of the St. Paul Pioneer Press; Beaton, of the Minneapolis Tribune, and Knappen, of the Minneapolis Times, are known to have been in the fight and one report is that they were killed, while another says they are now prisoners in the hands of the Indians. This little town has been full of excitement all day and as the reports from the other side of the lake came in the people became frantic and efforts were made to get up a force to go to the help of the troops. This will be sent in a few hours, reinforcements coming on a special train from Brainerd. However, additional soldiers are most needed and the feeling is general that they can not come too soon.

Wednesday's fight occurred 30 miles from Walker on a point jutting out into the lake near Bear island. The soldiers, 100 strong, under command of Gen. John M. Bacon and Maj. Wilkinson, had arrived here last evening and at half-past four this morning they went on board boats, and were carried to the point named, where a landing was made with considerable difficulty, a gale having started up a pretty lively sea. The landing was effected at about 8 o'clock. Scouts were hustled through the bush in every direction, and for three hours no trace of the Indians could be found. Every precaution against ambush had been taken. Finally, at about half-past eleven the soldiers were drawn up in an open space near the shore of the lake and preparations were about to begin for dinner. The soldiers were still in line though the coffee making had commenced. Suddenly a shot was fired from the house of Bog-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig, the Indian who has been the head and center of this whole difficulty. Ex-Marshall Ed Harris, a Walker half-breed, was struck, his arm being broken. This shot seemed to be a signal, for immediately shots came from every direction and three men dropped and were carried to the rear. The soldiers, who are veterans, not alone of the Santiago battle, but of many an Indian skirmish, knew what to do, and at the first shot all found shelter and awaited another volley to tell them where to shoot. Gen. Bacon and Maj. Wilkinson steadied their men with encouraging words, and with a second volley the Indians attempted a rush on the soldiers. The rattling volley from the regulars that met the oncoming reds stopped the rush and drove back the Indians, although half a dozen of them were dropped by the soldiers' fire. The fire from the Pillagers then became more scattering and the soldiers made a fine charge and drove them back, though the firing continued. The steamers on which the soldiers had come as well as those used by the newspaper correspondents were fired on by the Indians with effect. Inspector Tinker received a shot in the leg and had his sleeve ripped.

Brill of the Pioneer Press, Beaton of the Tribune and the Times' correspondent had landed prior to the arrival of the soldiers, a previous experience having made them believe the danger was slight. They were thus brought into the thick of the fight and fought with the soldiers. The men on the steamers saw them in the fight taking vigorous part with their revolvers until they were compelled to fly closely pursued by the painted savages. Wednesday night an Indian who arrived from Bear island stated that all the men out of uniform had been killed, but that he could not tell how many soldiers had been shot.

No direct word has come from either correspondents who were with the troops or from the soldiers. This is looked on as additional cause for apprehension, as it is believed that Gen.

Bacon would have sent back some official communication had it been possible to do so. No word whatever has come from him. Neither has it been possible to confirm the report that the entire detachment has been wiped out.

The outlook at this hour is that the agency Indians may go on the war path at any moment. They have been holding a council all night and reports received every half hour by runners describing the condition of affairs. Two of the old chiefs want war, but there are others who are trying desperately to stem the tide of discontent and to prevent any conflict with the troops. The two correspondents, who are still in Walker, started for the island Wednesday night, and hope to get back in time to give some idea of the situation and as to whether the other newspaper men and the soldiers still live.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary Bliss received a telegram Wednesday night from Indian Inspector Tinker, announcing a fight with the Pillager Indians in Minnesota Wednesday. It did not say how many were killed. Marshal O'Connor wired Attorney General Griggs that a general Indian uprising was imminent.

On receipt of these advices Secretary Alger ordered reinforcements sent to the scene at once on a special train, if necessary, and with a Gatling gun if needed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—Orders were issued late Wednesday night for additional troops to go to Leech lake and 200 soldiers will leave for there on a special train early in the morning, reaching the scene of trouble early Thursday afternoon. This is in accordance with a telegram from Adj. Gen. Corbin to Lieut. Col. Sturgis, assistant adjutant general for the department of Dakota.

The Pillager and other neighboring Indians of the White Earth reservation claim to have many reasons for their present outbreak, although the direct trouble with the Pillagers comes over attempts to bring in some of the Indians to the United States court at Duluth in connection with liquor selling cases.

Their grievances go back through many years and there have been legislative and other attempts to settle them, one of the latest being the Nelson law regarding the sale of timber on the Indian lands. However the Indians claimed that the method of disposing of this was both cumbersome and expensive and that they were the sufferers. In regard to serving as witnesses in illegal liquor selling cases, they claimed that the deputy marshals left them to find their own way home from Duluth without having paid them the proper mileage. This is denied by the deputies. The leader in the trouble with the Pillagers is an old warrior Bog-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig, not a chief, who recently returned from court and was soon afterwards sought again by the deputies. He alleged ill-treatment in being turned adrift penniless in Duluth and aroused the other Indians to protest against the way he claimed to have been treated. The United States marshal insists that the old man's story is unfounded but the reds had been stirred up to such a pitch that trouble apparently became unavoidable, in view of the deeply seated feeling of general ill-treatment in regard to their timber lands and their lands and rights in general.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—A telegram received at midnight from Walker, Minn., says a fierce fight between the Indians and the troops is still in progress. Marshal O'Connor reports several fatalities among the soldiers, but does not give the number. A special train is coming from Brainerd with a hundred armed citizens.

WALKER, Minn., Oct. 6.—With the single exception of Santiago there was not as bloody a land battle fought during the Hispano-American war as that which occurred around the hour of noon Wednesday away off on the border land of Minnesota civilization—Bear island, Leech lake. There are dead Indians all over this island Wednesday night. There may be a half dozen of them, as reported in the early evening bulletins, and there may be 40. The place is so isolated, 18 miles by water east of this point, there is so much confusion, and the people are in such a state of fright that it is difficult to get any further information than that a fierce fight, lasting over three hours, has occurred; that a lot of red men and white men were killed, and that the Indians are not yet under control. The battle began at 11:10 and was not ended until shortly before 3.

DIED WHILE IN A BATH TUB.

The Nephew of the Earl of Dunmore Found Dead in the West End Hotel, at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Hon. Wm. Strutt, aged 25 years, son of Lord Helder, of Kingston Derby, Eng., and nephew of the earl of Dunmore, a Scotch peer, who is a lord in waiting to Queen Victoria, was found dead in the bath tub in his apartments at the West End hotel at 8 a. m. Wednesday. His body was entirely submerged in the water that filled the tub. The last seen of the young man was at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. It is not yet known what caused his death. The remains have been removed to the morgue to await the inquest.

From its condition the body must have been in the tub for some time. The hotel people were immediately notified, and the coroner took charge of the remains for the purpose of learning the cause of death. The countess of Dunmore, who is stopping with friends in this city, is an aunt of the dead man. She was notified of his death, but as her whereabouts are kept a secret, nothing could be learned from her concerning Mr. Strutt.

A prominent citizen with whom the deceased dined recently is of the opinion that Mr. Strutt died of heart disease. The man, he said, was traveling for his health and he thinks the shock received in taking a cold bath had a fatal effect.

A LYNCHING IN MARYLAND.

A Negro Who Attempted a Criminal Assault on Mrs. Capt. Morrison Riddled With Bullets by a Mob.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—Wright Smith, colored, who attempted an assault on Mrs. Morrison, the wife of Capt. James Morrison, of the Third district, residing near Jones Station, was taken from jail shortly after 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and shot. The lynching party went to the jail, pointed guns at Night Watchman Duvall and took the prisoner to Sanders' lot, near the city cemetery, and riddled the body with bullets. Smith begged for mercy and cried "Murder" as he was being removed from jail.

WERE NO "CAMP HORRORS."

Food Was Plenty in the Soldiers' Camp at Santiago de Cuba, Says Gen. Joseph Wheeler.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Gen. Wheeler resumed his testimony before the war investigation commission Wednesday morning, a half-hour executive session preceding his entrance.

"If there were any 'camp horrors,' said the witness, 'the commandant of the camp was responsible, for he had authority to get all that was necessary for the comfort of the men. I do not believe there was any lack of food.'"

INSURGENTS DEFEATED.

Three Hundred Muskets, Four Cannon and Ammunition Captured by Spanish Troops in the Philippines.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—An official dispatch from Iloilo reports the landing of Spanish troops caused a panic among the insurgents, and that 300 muskets, four cannon, a quantity of ammunition and a flag were captured, and 18 Spaniards who had been held as prisoners were released. The insurgents dispersed and many of them withdrew to the mountains while some surrendered. The clergy and other inhabitants made a demonstration in favor of Spain.

Communication with Cebu has been restored. Thirty-six Spaniards were killed in other encounters.

Turks Must Evacuate Crete.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 6.—The collective note of Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia, demanding the withdrawal of the Turkish troops in the island of Crete, was presented to the Turkish government Wednesday. It insists that the Turkish troops must evacuate the island of Crete within a month from Wednesday, their withdrawal to commence within a fortnight.

Campaign Opened in Wooster.

WOOSTER, O., Oct. 6.—The republicans of this (Wayne) county opened the fall campaign here Wednesday, Joseph B. Foraker being the principal speaker. His address was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause from the large audience present.

Hallwood Cash Register Co. Defeated.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—The injunction asked for by the Hallwood Cash Register Co., of Columbus, against the National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, O., was decided against the Hallwood company. The judge refused to grant the injunction.

Held in $5,000 Bond.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—United States Senator Quay, Richard R. Quay and Charles H. McKee, of Pittsburgh, was Wednesday afternoon held in $5,000 bail each to answer at the next term of court the charge of using the state funds deposited in the People's bank for their individual profit.

Cleveland Plays in St. Louis Next Year.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—"The present Cleveland team will play in 'St. Louis' next year," said President Muckenfuss, of the 'St. Louis' Browns, Wednesday.

ABOUT ONE HUNDRED DEAD.

News From the Storm Stricken Districts Along the Southern Coast Coming in Very Slowly.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 6.—News from the storm-stricken districts along the coast is coming in gradually, and it is probable that a hundred lives have been lost. News by way of a boat which arrived Wednesday is that 50 people were drowned at Fernandina.

From Campbell island, inhabited by about forty colored people it is reported that all but three were drowned. At Brunswick four people lost their lives and at Jesup, 100 miles from the coast, one man was killed in a building blown down by the storm.

At Sterling Station, Charles Wright, a merchant, reports the disasters from the flood great to lives and property in the rice field portion of Glynn and McIntosh. There are a number of small islands at various points around Brunswick, Fernandina and Darien on which small groups of families live. It will be some days before accurate reports are heard from these points. At Darien the water is reported high and the town badly damaged. There are many rumors of loss of life but all of the reports thus far received are believed to be exaggerated. Many of those who bring news left the scene of the storm during its height and consequently can not be expected to give accurate information. The damage by wind and rain has been enormous and extends inland 100 miles in some cases. The damage to shipping is enormous. Near Darien the schooner Blanche Hopkins collided with a small schooner, the Minnie and sank her. The Minnie had on board 3,000 pounds of dynamite. At Fernandina the tug Gladiador is said to have landed in the middle of the town. Mrs. Lucy Carnegie's magnificent yacht, Dungeness, is badly damaged. The Cumberland island pilot boat Maud Helen, was landed high on a bluff in Barbanks yard.

The schooner Edia and Emma, with a cargo of coal, is on shore at Jekyll island near Charleston. The Jekyll Island club launches landed in the club house yards and the water has destroyed considerable of the club's property.

On St. Simon's island along the beach, lined with summer resorters' cottages, the tide wrought devastation. Reports are that all the cottages have been wrecked. St. Simon's mills and other property on the opposite end of the island are not badly damaged, being protected by the timber lands.

THE VICE ADMIRAL GRADE.

It Will Be Recommended to Congress for Dewey by President McKinley and Secretary Long.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—It is said President McKinley and Secretary of the Navy Long have determined to recommend to congress the revival of the grade of vice admiral, to be filled by the promotion of Rr. Adm. Dewey. President McKinley in his annual message, and Secretary Long, in his annual report, intend to devote considerable space to the achievements of the Asiatic squadron under the command of Rr. Adm. Dewey and the splendid judgment and diplomatic tact that officer has displayed in handling the many difficult questions which arose before the arrival of the American troops and the capture of Manila. As under the existing law Rr. Adm. Dewey will reach the retiring age in December, 1899, there is a strong probability that Secretary Long will also urge that congress pass a law permitting the retention of that officer upon the active list for an additional ten years. A law permitting such action in the case of officers receiving the thanks of congress for gallant conduct in the civil war is now on the statute books, but the authorities would be glad to see the law changed so that officers of the recent and future wars will be similarly rewarded. There is little doubt that congress will willingly adopt the recommendation regarding Rr. Adm. Dewey's advancement.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—It is announced that Adm. Cervera will be appointed a life senator.

Proposed Alliance with England.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. In a like manner, when men and women keep up their bodily strength with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance for attack from disease. The old time remedy enriches the blood, builds up the muscles, steadies the nerves and increases the appetite. Try it.

A MIGHTY SHIP.

The Illinois Launched at Newport News in the Presence of Thousands.

As the Steel Monster Gently Sled Into the Water a Mighty Cheer Went Up—Novel Gift From the Workmen to the Fair Sponsor.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 5.—At 12:33 Tuesday the mightiest ship of Uncle Sam's fighting navy glided smoothly into the waters of the historic James river.

As the steel monster trembled in her flight from earth to sea, Miss Nancy Leiter, of Chicago, broke a bottle of sparkling champagne upon the vessel's prow and pronounced the words that made it the godchild of the great western commonwealth, and caused the 20,000 people assembled to send up a cheer that could be heard for miles.

The governor of Illinois shook hands with the governor of Virginia, the newly floated ship rose proudly from her initial dip, and the launching was pronounced a success.

Then everyone in the throng proceeded to enjoy the day to the utmost, in anticipation of the banquet in the afternoon and the ball at Old Point in the evening.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

They Receive a Cordial Invitation to Visit the Trans-Mississippi International Exposition at Omaha.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—Adj. Gen. Moorman, by order of Gen. J. B. Gordon, commanding United Confederate veterans, Tuesday issued an order stating that a cordial fraternal letter has been received at these headquarters from Gen. L. S. Clarkson, past commander of the G. A. R., now general manager of the Trans-Mississippi and International exposition at Omaha, Neb., especially inviting all ex-confederates to attend that exposition during the peace jubilee week, from October 10 to 15.

The general commanding desires this generous invitation made known to all the United Confederate veteran camps and to all the ex-confederates so that as many as desire can attend the interesting and patriotic ceremonies.

Campbell Island, Twelve Miles From Darien, Ga., Swept Away.

Four Deaths Reported From Brunswick—Damage to Property About Half a Million Dollars—Several Lives Were Lost in Florida.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 5.—Complete details from Brunswick and surrounding county are impossible because of the prostration of the telegraph and telephone systems. Campbell island, 12 miles from Darien on the Altamaha river, is said to be completely swept away and only three persons succeeded in getting off the island. There is no definite information as to the population of the island, and estimates of the number supposed to have perished there range from 20 to 50. The population was made up wholly of colored truck growers.

Four deaths are now reported from Brunswick.

The damage to property there is estimated at half a million dollars. News from outlying islands is not obtainable. The Norwegian bark Louise, schooner Blanch Hopkins, schooner Aaron Shepherd, schooner Henry L. Martin and pilot boats E. B. Jordan and Gracie are ashore. Pilot boat Pride sank at her dock. SENATOR QUAY ARRESTED.

Also His Son and Other Prominent Men Accused of Using Public Money for Their Own Use.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Warrants were issued Monday for the arrest of United States Senator Matthew Quay, his son Richard R. Quay, ex-State Treasurer Benj. J. Haywood and Chas. H. McKee, of Pittsburgh, law partner of Lieut. Gov. Lyon. They are accused of conspiracy with John S. Hopkins, formerly cashier of the Peoples' bank, to use public moneys for their own use. Hopkins killed himself last March, shortly before the bank's failure.

Senator Quay and his son came up from Atlantic City as soon as they heard of their intended arrest. They promptly surrendered themselves and Magistrate Jermon held them in $5,000 bail each for a hearing at noon next Thursday. Davis H. Lane, the republican leader, became their bondsman, and Monday afternoon they returned to the seashore. By advice of their attorney they declined to discuss the case. They will come back to the city on Wednesday so as to be in full time for the hearing.

Mr. Haywood is in Montana and Mr. McKee in New York.

GEN. WHEELER TESTIFIES.

The Story of El Caney and San Juan Told to the Investigating Committee—Praise for Shafter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The war investigation commission began its examination of witnesses Tuesday by placing Gen. Joseph Wheeler on the stand. Maj. Mills administered the oath.

Ex-Gov. Beaver conducted the examination, developing the essential facts as to Gen. Wheeler's rank and his command. Gen. Wheeler stated that he left Tampa for Cuba on June 14, but that he had no knowledge of the plan of campaign before going aboard the transport. He then told of the voyage. On June 21 Gen. Shafter ordered him to disembark the next day, which he did, with a portion of his command. He rode into the country four miles that day and the next moved his troops to Jaguacita. He then began his reconnoitering, arranging with Gen. Castillo, of the Cuban army, to send Cuban troops with his men for the reconnoissance, but unfortunately the Cubans did not keep the engagement.

He told of the first battle at La Quasima, stopping to compliment especially the regular troops and also to speak of their excellent firing. They soon learned to distrust the reports and estimates of the Spaniards. Gen. Wheeler had not been able, on his own account, to secure any accurate estimate of the Spanish loss during the American approach upon Santiago.

Speaking of the proceedings after the first battles he explained that he had been reported sick and there were some movements just prior to the battle of El Caney with which he was not familiar. "I was not sick," he said, "but I had been on the 29th and 30th. Still I had not gone to the sick list. I had a fever, but I appreciated the situation, took medicine and came out all right."

"I ought to say," said the general in the course of his testimony, "that it was magnificent to see officers of high rank go ashore with their packs on their backs, accepting all the fortunes of war with their men. They slept on the ground with the soldiers. None of us were mounted and we were without tents for seven days."

Speaking of the character of the roads from the coast to the points occupied by the Americans, he said that with such attention as they were able to give to them they were very good. The rains had not been severe up to that time. The roads were narrow, but equal to the demands. The supplies were considered sufficient except in a few instances and in those instances the deficiency was only temporary.

"Gen. Shafter," he said, "deserved great credit for the zeal he displayed in this respect. He devoted himself to this task and I think there is no doubt he succeeded. We used pack trains and there was comparatively little suffering because of the shortness of quartermaster's supplies."

Gen. Wheeler said in response to a question that Cervera's fleet was the objective of the campaign. There was no reason why the Spanish troops should not have made a sortie from Santiago, and he asked Gen. Toral after the surrender why he had not attacked. The latter replied that the failure to do so was because his men were foot sore. Yet Gen. Wheeler could not accept this explanation, for the Spanish soldiers were not foot sore.

Gen. Wheeler's opinion was that the Spanish commander was not able to face the Americans in the open.

THE PEACE COMMISSIONERS.

Judge Day Sends an Important Cablegram to Secretary Hay—The Spanish Want Delay.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—There is reason to believe that Spain's peace commissioners have been not only startled, but nonplused by the communication made to them by Judge Day, representing the American peace commissioners. A lengthy and important cablegram was received at the state department from Judge Day Tuesday afternoon. Immediately after reading it Secretary Hay took the cablegram to the white house, where there was a conference. After the conference a cablegram was sent to Judge Day in Paris. It is said that the answer was that the United States would pay no money for any part of the Philippines, and that pending the conclusion of peace negotiations, Spain would not be permitted to dispose of any part of the islands. The Spanish commissioners are said to have been so discomfited by this announcement that they asked for a few days' delay in which they might communicate with Premier Sagasta and receive further instructions.

The Best War News.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is now publishing the fullest, most accurate and most reliable war news of any paper in the South or West. It is devoting all its energies to making a reputation for its war reports, and is certainly succeeding admirably. The Courier-Journal has subordinated all other issues to that of the war. Politics, money, civil service, the tariff—all are out of it now. The war is the one topic discussed by the people, and they want the news of it fresh and accurate. The Courier-Journal realizes this, and it is supplying the demand as no other paper can do.

The Twice-a-Week Courier-Journal prints the cream of the daily news. It is issued Wednesday and Saturday. The price has recently been cut from $1 to 50 cents a year, making unquestionably the cheapest, as well as the best, paper published anywhere. You get 104 six or eight-page papers for 50 cents. By a special arrangement, the Twice-a-Week Courier-Journal and THE BOURBON NEWS will be sent one year for only $2.15, a slight advance over the price of this paper alone. Subscriptions under this offer must be cash, and must invariably be sent direct to THE BOURBON NEWS office, Paris, Ky. (tf)

THE NEW BATTLE SHIP ILLINOIS.

The dimensions of the Illinois are as follows: Length on load water line, 368 feet; beam, extreme, 72 feet 2 1/2 inches; draft on normal displacement of 11,625 tons, 22 feet 6 inches; maximum displacement, all ammunition and stores on board, 12,335 tons; maximum indicated horse power (estimated), 10,000; probable speed, 16 1/2 knots; normal coal supply, 800 tons; coal supply, loose storage, 1,300 tons; complement of officers, 40; seamen, 440. The main battery will consist of four thirteen-inch breech-loading rifles in Hiehborn balanced turrets, oval in shape and placed in the center line of the vessel, and fourteen six-inch rapid-fire guns. The secondary battery will consist of sixteen six-pounder rapid-fire guns, four one-pounder rapid-fire guns, two Colt guns and two field guns.

launching of the Illinois was the most important of the kind in the history of our country. The vessel is the largest fighting ship ever floated under the Stars and Stripes, is the costliest ever built by the navy, and experts believe will be the most formidable war ship ever put in commission by any power.

There never was such a crowd in Newport News at any previous ship launching. Gov. Tanner, of Illinois, came Monday night, escorting several hundred prominent citizens from his state. They took up quarters at the Hotel Chamberlain, and were joined by Miss Leiter and her father.

In the governor's party were 20 members of his staff and their ladies. The guests from Washington reached the scene at 9 o'clock, two hours before the launching.

Among the distinguished visitors from the national capital were Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, Chief Constructor Hiehborn, Chief Engineer Melville, Capt. Crowninshield, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Gen. Miles.

An interesting incident, not on the official programme, was the presentation, by one of the workmen employed on the huge fighter, of a souvenir to Miss Leiter. A small piece of steel had been cut from one of the plates by the workmen, one side of which had been polished to look like silver, and the other side painted red, the color of the Illinois. A silver chain is rivited to the souvenir, which is inscribed as follows:

"This piece of plate was cut from the hull of the United States battle ship Illinois. Presented to Miss Leiter, sponsor, by the men employed in its construction."

"NEWPORT NEWS, Oct. 4, 1898."

The balance of the piece of plate from which this was cut was worked up into small trinkets and given to Miss Leiter to bestow on her friends as souvenirs of the occasion.

After the launching the officials of the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Co. escorted the guests about the mammoth plant.

The banquet was given at the Chamberlain, Old Point Comfort.

They Gave Themselves Up.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Charles H. McKee, of Pittsburgh, who together with Senator Quay and others is charged with conspiracy to use the state's public moneys for speculation, came to this city Tuesday and gave himself up. He was released on $5,000 bail, P. A. B. Widener, of this city, becoming surety.

Decapitated by Cars.

LOGAN, O., Oct. 5.—William Miller, aged 18, had his head and both legs cut off by the cars Tuesday.

Pavis and John Gatlin went into the well, one after the other. When no sign came from the men below Bob Coffey was sent down with a rope tied around his body. Coffey, too, succumbed to the deadly gases but not until he had tied a rope around the body of one of the men, John Gatlin, who was brought up in a dying condition. Ballard and Purvis were brought to the surface dead. Coffey was revived.

Tradesman's Bank, of New York, Fails.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Tradesman's national bank has failed. The Tradesman's national bank is one of the oldest in the city, and has for a long time past been identified with the Wool exchange, which some days ago suspended its dealings in wool. It is announced that the clearing-house committee made an examination of the Tradesman's national bank Monday night and refused to allow it to make clearances Tuesday morning.

The Return of the Iowa.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Tribune Wednesday prints a statement to the effect that the battle ship Iowa, which returned to New York harbor at 5:20 p. m. Tuesday, spent the afternoon on the Atlantic testing guns and machinery. The Iowa left quarantine early in the afternoon supposedly bound for Manila. A number of different reports have been circulated concerning the causes of the return of the Iowa.

Dr. Gatling Knows Nothing About a Trust.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Dr. R. J. Gatling, the inventor of the gun bearing his name, who was mentioned as being interested in Cleveland in a scheme to form a combination for the construction of war ships, guns and armor plate, said Tuesday that he knows nothing about a trust being formed.

New Insurance Company.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5.—The Farmers' Mutual Insurance company, of Winchester, Brown county, was incorporated Tuesday by J. A. Gosh and others.

mont went across the marsh to Crispin island and her bow is sticking up in a tree. There are no docks left at Darien.

A dispatch by the tug H. M. C. Smith, to the Savannah Morning News, states that two children were drowned at Fernandina, Fla., in Sunday's flood, the worst in the city's history. Water flooded a big portion of the city and sent many vessels high and dry on the beach. Telegraph systems are prostrated and railroads have suspended operations. A family of mother, father and three children were in their house when the tide carried it away. One of the boys undertook to save his baby brother but was unable to reach shore, being forced to drop the child. The father was rescued from a tree and the mother drifted ashore. The crew at the quarantine station were rescued from a life raft, the station being entirely destroyed. The loss to property will be heavy.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 4.—Details of the flood show that not less than 25 lives were lost around Darien and Brunswick, while reliable information states that 30 people were drowned at Fernandina, Fla., and the greater portion of the coast from that point up is covered with wrecks. Tekyl island, the millionaire's winter resort, suffered like the humblest dweller's home.

THE LOSS WAS VERY HEAVY.

Fire in Clarksville, Tenn., Destroys Tobacco Warehouse, Storage Shed, Railway Depot, Cars and Cottages.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—Fire broke out in Grange tobacco warehouse early Wednesday morning occupied by Gill and Turnley and general storage of tobacco, burning about 4,500 hogheads of tobacco. Loss on tobacco and building estimated nearly half a million dollars, with insurance about $300,000. The fire spreading, burned Grange Brothers' coal and storage shed, the Louisville & Nashville depot, six freight cars on the track and several cottages. Fire covered a space of about ten acres. Fire is now under control. Origin of fire unknown.

Death of A. W. Lyman.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Mr. A. W. Lyman, one of the best known newspaper writers of the country, and for seven years editor and proprietor of the Helena, Mont., Independent, died at his home in Brooklyn Monday morning. Mr. Lyman was born near Cincinnati in 1848.

Smallpox Reported in Preble.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—A case of smallpox is reported from New Paris, Preble county. Secretary Probst has gone there.

after the latter's departure for Atlantic City.

"I presume Senator Quay will not make any statement at this juncture," said he, "regarding this last dastardly attack of his malevolent enemies, though he doubtless will in the proper time. There is, however, no reason why I, as his colleague and personal friend, should be silent."

"Attempted assassination of character has been almost the sole weapon of attack employed by Senator Quay's opponents for several years, and the methods pursued have been augmented in viciousness and vindictiveness as their futility has been demonstrated. As the last despairing effort of unscrupulous conspirators comes this brutal move of the opposition, which they have had upon their programme for weeks."

The warrants were made out on Saturday by Magistrate Jermon at the instance of District Attorney Graham and on the affidavit of Charles F. Myers, of the district attorney's office. Myers is a detective and acted on information furnished by Thomas W. Barlow, receiver of the Peoples' bank. District Attorney Graham said that from evidence in the shape of letters and papers furnished to him he believed it his duty to begin proceedings. He added:

"I propose to have a hearing as quickly as possible and to produce at that hearing all the facts necessary to a binding over. Some facts will be reserved until the time of the trial. If the state of affairs as represented to me is true it ought to be exposed. This rottenness ought to be showed up no matter upon whom it reflects. It is not my practice to speak in advance of the trial of a case, and I will say nothing further as to its merits."

The Higher Education of Women.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—At a meeting Tuesday of the trustees of the University of Pennsylvania it was announced that Col. Joseph M. Bennett, the late merchant and philanthropist, had bequeathed to the institution a number of valuable properties valued at over $400,000, to be devoted to the higher education of women.

On the Way to Omaha.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, and his staff reached Chicago on the Pan-Handle Tuesday and left on the Burlington for Omaha, to take part in the exercises on Ohio day at the exposition. The party will return home via St. Louis. The governor was accompanied by Mrs. Bushnell and his whole staff.

Tuesday's Registration.

Very little interest was manifested in the registration Tuesday, the total for Paris' six precincts only reaching 908 as compared with 1,151 last year (1897.) a decrease in every ward.

The registration Tuesday was as follows:

Paris No. 1.....	125
Paris No. 2.....	164
Paris No. 3.....	112
Paris No. 4.....	189
Paris No. 5.....	173
Paris No. 6.....	140

Total.....908

The official summary does not show the number of Democrats, Republicans, or non-committals, although a casual observation of the books shows a larger decrease in the Republican registration.

Lafayette Day.

GOVERNOR BRADLEY has issued a proclamation setting aside October 19th as Lafayette day on which the public schools are requested to conduct exercises of a patriotic nature, and collect funds to be used in erecting a monument to the gallant Frenchman, to be unveiled at Paris July 4th, 1900.

SOME of the papers in Kentucky will probably learn some day that abuse is not argument, and that vilifying a man never has and never will influence him to cast his vote for their candidate. It is unfortunate for Democracy that some of the silver editors have disordered lives.

It is meet that the title "Daughter of the Confederacy" should be held sacred with the memory of Miss Winnie Davis. The love and esteem which the veterans of the Lost Cause centered in her could not be transferred to another, however lovely or noble of character.

SOME Kentucky papers affect surprise because Senator Lindsay registered as a Democrat Tuesday. He is worth a hundred Democrats of the kind that bark at his heels.

The thousands who have been entertained by the wit and eloquence of Gov. Bob Taylor, of Tennessee, will regret to hear that he is high unto death.

Raceland Jersey butter for sale by Newton Mitchell.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

Druggists sell Mother's Friend for $1 a bottle. The Bradford Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga. Send for our free illustrated book.

THERE are eggs and eggs. The egg of yesterday looks, feels, measures and weighs like the egg of last month, but there's a difference in another respect, and that difference is worth money. Its just so with laundry. The difference between good work and poor is slight to the unpracticed discernment, but is a difference that counts every time. It's a difference that changes your laundry bill from an expense to an investment. We do good work—it will cost no more than poor work but its worth double the difference.

NUPTIAL KNOTS

Engagements, Announcements And Solemnizations Of The Marriage Vows.

Miss Elizabeth Saffarans, eldest daughter of Mrs. Daniel Saffarans, will be married October 12th, to Mr. Frank Norton Graves, of St. Louis.

The engagement is announced of Mr. George Evans, Jr., and Miss Minna Crutcher. The wedding will occur in the Richmond Christian Church in November.

Miss Louie Brner, of this city, will be one of the bridesmaids at the Gray-Somerville wedding which will be celebrated in Wesley Chapel, in Cincinnati, on October 26th.

William Thornton Stevenson and Miss Florence Culbertson were united at a fashionable marriage ceremony in Covington Saturday evening. Miss Mae Hord, of Maysville, was maid of honor to the bride.

At Frankfort Wednesday John Gray and Miss Kate Lorenz were married, using a licence which was issued seven years ago. When the license was first issued the bride changed her mind and refused to wed.

Pierce Ewing and Miss Fannie Thurman, of Georgetown, were secretly married in Frankfort on September 3d. They intended to keep the marriage a secret until next Spring but the truth came out this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Carrithers, of Shelbyville, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Mamie, to Dr. Graham Lawrence. The wedding will take place on Wednesday, October 19, in Shelbyville. Miss Carrithers will be remembered as the attractive young lady who visited at Mr. M. A. Kenney's a fortnight ago with Mr. Chas. Webber.

Mr. Harry Giovannoli, of the Danville Advocate, and Miss Carrie Kinnaird, daughter of Mrs. Mary Kinnaird, were united in a simple but beautiful wedding Wednesday at the home of Mr. James Kinnaird, in Danville, Rev. Dr. E. M. Green officiating. The bride, who is an exceedingly lovely and amiable young lady, was exquisitely gowned in white, with bridal veil, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The groom is a model young gentleman who is well known in literary circles as one of the very brightest writers in Kentucky. The entire Kentucky press extends hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Giovannoli, who are now spending a fortnight's wedding trip in the East.

FISHER-FINNELL

Lieutenant Neville C. Fisher, of Company I, Second Kentucky, and Miss Eva Ruth Finnell, of Georgetown, were united in a beautiful wedding ceremony performed Wednesday afternoon at the Georgetown Baptist Church which was crowded with relatives and friends. The edifice, which was lighted with candles, was tastefully decorated with palms. The bride, who is the only daughter of Judge Jas. Finnell, of Georgetown, a d a very lovely and amiable young lady, was becomingly gowned in white Duchess satin, and her maid of honor, Miss Mary Emma Stevenson, of Georgetown, was pretty in a gown of white. The best man was Mr. Oakford Hinton, of this city. The ushers were Capt. Chas. Winn and Sergeant C. D. Ray, of this city, Robt. Finnell, of Georgetown, and Lewis Arnett, of Nicholasville. The groom is the son of Mr. W. H. Fisher, of this city, and is an exemplary young man, and a graduate of the law department of Ann Arbor University, besides graduating in the same class with his bride at Georgetown College. In testimony of his popularity among his army comrades, the boys of Company I gave him a splendid cut-glass berry bowl as a wedding present. Lieutenant Fisher and bride left immediately after the ceremony for a brief wedding trip.

OBITUARY.

Respectfully Dedicated To The Memory Of The Dead.

Harry Northcott, aged about seventy-five years, died Tuesday at his home in Vevay, Ind. The deceased was a brother of John B. Northcott, of this city, who went to Vevay to attend the funeral.

James Glenn, aged about thirty-eight, died at his home in Georgetown Tuesday. The deceased is a brother of Mrs. Chas. Talbot, of this city, and is survived by a wife and two children.

Mrs. Mattie Barnett, wife of R. P. Barnett, died Tuesday at the home of her husband near this city, aged about fifty years. The deceased, a daughter of the late Robt. Clarke, and was the mother of Clarke Barnett and Charles Barnett, of near Paris, and Mrs. George Lockwood, of Cincinnati. Funeral services were held at the residence yesterday afternoon by Rev. E. H. Rutherford, and the remains were interred in the Paris cemetery. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Walker Muir, John Wright, Jos. M. Hall, B. B. Marsh, Frank Isgrigg and Chas. Kenney.

Catarrh is Not Incurable

But it can not be cured by sprays, washes and inhaling mixtures which reach only the surface. The disease is in the blood, and can only be reached through the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which can have any effect upon Catarrh; it cures the disease permanently and forever rids the system of every trace of the vile complaint.

Miss Josie Owen, of Montpelier, Ohio, writes: "I was afflicted from infancy with Catarrh, and no one can know the suffering it produces better than I. The sprays and washes prescribed by the doctors relieved me only temporarily, and though I used them constantly for ten years, the disease had a firmer hold than ever. I tried a number of blood remedies, but their mineral ingredients settled in my bones and gave me rheumatism. I was in a lamentable condition, and after exhausting all treatment, was declared incurable. Seeing S. S. S. advertised as a cure for blood diseases, I decided to try it. As soon as my system was under the effect of the medicine, I began to improve, and after taking it for two months I was cured completely, the dreadful disease was eradicated from my system, and I have had no return of it."

Many have been taking local treatment for years, and find themselves worse now than ever. A trial of will prove it to be the right remedy for Catarrh. It will cure the most obstinate case.

Ordered that the Turnpike Committee and County Attorney enter into a contract with the city of Paris, whereby the city is to furnish pipe for a drain to be laid on Main street in front of Wilson Ingels' property, the county to have same laid by prisoners confined in the jail under sentence of hard labor.

Esquires Neely, Ball and Weathers were appointed a committee to investigate the cost of moulding to be placed in Circuit Court room on which to hang pictures.

Ordered that the Jailor be allowed $1 per day for actually attending court.

The usual number of claims were allowed.

Good Bowling.

THE fine new "Pastime Bowling Alleys" which were opened Tuesday in the Louisville Store building by Dr. J. R. Adair and Swift Champ, are having a fine patronage. Since Tuesday a number of good scores have been made; the best score, 213, being made by E. O. Brown. Other good scores were 203 Ed. Tucker, 194 and 188 by Elmer Foot, and 189 by John Brennan. The alleys are made of maple and are as true and fast as any in Kentucky, being the best hard wood alleys made. There is plenty of room for players and spectators, and the patronage of the public is invited.

The alleys can be rented by clubs and private parties.

Bank Building Bought.

THE Agricultural Bank has bought from Mr. W. A. Bacon the building on the corner of Broadway and Main, now occupied by the Bourbon Bank, for $5,100. In the Spring the Agricultural Bank will erect a handsome block running from Broadway to Fourth street, the bank to occupy one of the corner buildings. The Bank has already had applications from parties who want to rent nearly every room in the new building to be erected.

The Bourbon Bank will move next week into its handsome new banking building on the corner of Fifth and Main streets.

Paris Trotters Sold.

Douglas Thomas has sold to M. Schlessenger, of Vienna, for the Austrian government, the three-year-old trotting mare Mabel Money Penny, two-year-old record 2:20, by Cyclone, dam by Stamboul. She trotted second to 2:13 last week at Louisville. The price was private.

J. T. Hedges, of this city, has sold for a private price to Bowerman Bros., of Lexington, the three-year-old gelding Dainty Daffo, by Wilton, dam by Bourbon Wilkes. Dainty Daffo has trotted a trial in 2:13.

The Monday Night Club.

THE Monday Night Literary Club, which held its first meeting of the Fall season with Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hinton, Monday night, elected the following officers: President, Rev. J. S. Meredith; Vice President, J. W. Bacon; Secretary, Mrs. W. O. Hinton; Treasurer, Miss Mamie McClintock; Critic, Rev. E. G. B. Mann. The next meeting of the club will be with Miss Lucy Lowry.

Held Over to Circuit Court.

JOHN HENRY TWIGG, charged with breaking into a Kentucky Midland freight car and stealing a barrel of whisky, was tried Wednesday in Judge Purnell's court, and held over to Circuit Court in $300 bond. Chas. Kidd, a witness for Twigg, was held on a charge of perjury.

Frank & Co. are showing a large line of Jackets, Capes and Fur Collarettes.

The Lexington Trots.

THE October trots began yesterday at Lexington with a large crowd in attendance to see the double-header program of races. The $16,000 Kentucky Futurity was won in straight heats by the Michigan colt Peter The Great, in 2:12. Lady of the Manor won the $5,000 Futurity for two-year-olds, John T. Hedges getting fourth money, $200, with Risky. The Tennessee, $4,000 for pacers, was won by the great Searchlight, in 2:09, and Guy won the 2:15 trot.

Burial of Dr. Collins.

THE remains of Dr. T. C. Collins, of Midway, who drowned himself Sunday in a pond near Elizabeth, were interred in the Lexington cemetery Tuesday by the side of his daughter, May Collins. There were no religious services held at the burial owing to the eccentric views of the deceased. He was a wealthy and prominent citizen of Midway, and had of late been a free thinker like his daughter, May Collins, who was asphyxiated with a male companion in a Boston hotel over a year ago. He leaves a wife and three children—one son and two daughters.

For Kentucky's Namesake.

SINCE it has been announced that subscriptions to the fund to purchase a silver service for the battleship Kentucky are so slow about coming in, it is suggested that some of the patriotic citizens of Paris interest themselves in the matter and see that Paris sends a liberal subscription. It would not be a bad idea to give a concert, a carnival or a performance of some kind to assist in raising a liberal subscription. It would be an everlasting shame if Kentucky failed to do the handsome thing after being honored by the naming of such a splendid battleship after the famous old Commonwealth. The question should be agitated immediately and every citizen should feel proud to contribute something toward purchasing the silver service.

Will March To Blue Licks.

THE Third Kentucky and 160th Indiana, now at Camp Hamilton, near Lexington, will take a practice march to Blue Lick Springs. The regiments will pass through Paris and Millersburg, and will be under command of Gen. Wiley. The regiments will be equipped with "dog" tents and rations for several days, and a rifle range will be selected at Blue Licks. The first camping place will be a short distance above Kenney's Station and the second will be near Millersburg. They will start in about a week.

Capt. E. L. Butts and Lieut. Sancer, of the 160th Indiana, and Lieut. Henry Casey, of the Third Kentucky, and Corporals Bainbridge and Smith, and Privates Johnson, Phillips, Pittman, Williamson and Brown, were in the city last night, having been detailed to go over the route of the proposed march and select suitable camping places twelve miles apart. They have two army wagons with them.

A Misfit Marriage.

MRS. ETNA BALLENGER has filed suit in the Robertson Circuit Court for a divorce from Joseph Ballenger, alleging neglect and failure to provide. They were married in this city two years ago. The wife was Miss Cracroft, and a dispatch from Mt. Olivet states that before her marriage she made two attempts to take her life when a former lover proved faithless.

A Popular Hotel.

ALWAYS popular, the Palace Hotel, Sixth and Vine street, was easily the most popular hotel in Cincinnati during the G. A. R. encampment. Excellent cuisine, prompt service, and polite employees, and splendid management has made it the best $2 and $2.50 per day hotel in America. Kentuckians always find friends stopping at this hostelry. (2Sep-4s)

SPEECH OF THE HAWAIIANS.

Vowels Run Riot, Consonants Are Few and There is a Great Literature of Poetry.

Along with territory and a few other things at what has been called the crossroads of the Pacific, the United States has annexed a new language and a somewhat considerable literature owned by the 35,000 left as the remnant of their race. The Hawaiian is not a difficult or crabbed speech. It is soft and musical, most of the white people now in Hawaii speak it more or less fully, and it offers no great difficulty to the others who may be expected to fill up the new domain.

Its most prominent characteristic is the great use of vowels. Besides the five vowels it needs only seven consonants to make up the alphabet, and the one hard and fast rule of the grammar is that two consonants shall never come together and that no word or syllable shall end with other than a vowel. On the other hand, vowels may string along in indefinite succession. The speech abounds with whole words which have not a single consonant to hold them together. Two vowels stand side by side in a majority of words. The opportunity to triplicate the vowel has not been neglected; a word has been formed of every such combination. Thus "aaa" means friendly, "eee" is the verb to rise up, "iii" is little, "ooo" means to shrink, and "uuu" means to stammer. Four vowels together form many words, as "aaua," a crane or hag with wrinkles under the eyes. Some few words consist of as many as five vowels one after the other, "iaiao," which is the name for poi when it is hard and musty, or "ioiaio," the word meaning true.

The language is highly developed in grammar and rhetoric, developed by the savage Hawaiians up to the limit of their needs and containing the elements of a still further development. The proof of that may be found in the books which have been translated into Hawaiian. The Holy Scriptures in Hawaiian show this. Despite the fact that the history and the doctrine therein contained were absolutely beyond the line of island experience, it has been found possible to express them perfectly in the native tongue with only a very few words adapted from foreign sources; in fact, there are fewer than one per cent. of naturalized words in the Hawaiian.

It has its widespread linguistic affinities. The Polynesian tongue of which it is one member is spoken over a wide extent of the Pacific, as far south as New Zealand, as far east as Te Piti to Whenua or Rapa-nui, which is better known as the Easter island of the colossal carvings. When Cook traversed those seas he carried a Tahitian, who was everywhere a competent interpreter. One language of the Polynesian stem is as like another as are English, Dutch and German. There are Malay affinities; there are stems which may be traced in the remoteness of Madagascar. At least one great effort has been made to prove the Polynesians to be an early offshoot of the Aryan race and therefore blood brothers to the Germanic stock.—N. Y. Sun.

EMIGRATION OF RACES.

Feminine Nationalities Have Emigrated in Profusion Since the Way Was Opened.

It is the masculine races that emigrate. The earliest of the great colonizing peoples, the Phoenicians and Carthaginians, in addition to the "strenuous ferocity" that marked the Semites, possessed an "individual impulse and energy" which (in Grote's opinion) put them greatly above the Egyptians, Assyrians and Hindus. The Greeks were flexible and many-sided, and, being fractured into a hundred independent communities, had a self-organizing faculty which promoted emigration in many directions and diversified colonization. The manliest of ancient races, the Romans, overflowed equally in colonization and conquest. The now emasculated Spaniards and Portuguese were, in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, the most robust of European nations. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the French were aggressive and conquering. The long struggle with Spain made Holland a nation of heroes. The English Germans and Scandinavians are Bismarck's masculine peoples. The Celtic Irish, the Italians and other feminine nationalities have emigrated in profusion since emigration has been made easy.

The emigrating impulse is by no means diffused equally over the emigrating races; there are emigrating sections of these races. The migrating Aryans, whether starting from "somewhere in Asia" (as Max Muller still maintains) or from southern Russia (as Schrader contends), spread into every European country, and forming a fringe along the coast, where they remained as sea-rovers, or crowding to its centers, where they became its rulers and its aristocracy, were the progenitors of the migrating bands which left these countries in after years or are leaving them now.—James Collier, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

She Was Willing.

"If you do not marry me I shall hang myself!" exclaimed a lovelorn Denver young man. "Well, if you do, please go down a block," was the cheerful response. "For I heard papa say he did not want you to hang around here."—Denver Times.

FORECAST.

Take back, take back the harsh word now; Consider it unspoken; Break, break, though late, the angry vow 'That better far were broken.

The stream of death will bear away The object of thy passion; Oh, then, obliterate to-day The thought of his transgression.

Forget the little ill, revealed As though by hate's intention; Remember all the good, concealed As though by love's invention.

The hour may come when thou wilt stand Unsheltered, and unshriven; Forgiveness' price is in thy hand, To-day let it be given.

With hatred in the heart at last Bethink thee of his terror Whose alienated gaze were cast On love's eternal mirror.

Thou might'st endure the sight of woe— The scoffing—the derision— But where thou dost expect to go? How couldst thou bear the vision?—Edward N. Pomeroy, in Youth's Companion.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—Fannie McLane, a young widow, is invited to visit the Grangers at Fort Sedgwick. Her sister tries to dissuade her, as Randolph Merriam, (whom she had jilted for old McLane) and his bride are stationed there.

Chapter II.—Fannie McLane's wedding causes family feeling. A few months later she, while traveling with her husband, meets Merriam, on his wedding trip.

Chapter III.—Some time previous to this Merriam had gone on a government survey, fallen ill, and had been nursed by Mrs. Tremaine and daughter Florence. It is during the convalescing period that the conversation with which the next chapter opens takes place between Capt. Tremaine and his wife.

"You know he was engaged—to some body—east, and it was broken off," said Mrs. Tremaine, "and I hadn't thought of danger until just a day or two ago. Now—when he's going next week, as he says—and she has learned to care for him, what can we do?"

"He is going next week," said Tremaine. "He told me yesterday he ought to go now, and wished to go now. It was Wells who forbade. But Grafton always liked Merriam and Hayne believes in him. Our Florence might do worse, Dot."

"But do you understand?" she said, "do you realize that, just from proximity perhaps, Florence may have learned to care for him, while he is still thinking of his lost love?"

"You mean that—you think it all Florence and not Merriam?" he asked, starting back, and holding her from him, and looking with amazement and incredulity into her eyes—straight into her anxious, tearful face. "Why, Dot, it isn't possible! She—he—he must have learned to care for her. It couldn't be otherwise. Only I hadn't thought of Floy except as a child, and I wasn't prepared."

Like many another father, to whom a daughter is as the apple of the eye, Tremaine could see no fault, no failing in his child. To him she was the fairest, as she was the best, fondest, most dutiful girl in the whole army. One of his favorite plans had been to take her to West Point the previous summer, and let her, as he said to himself, "paralyze the corps." One of the sweet dreams he had often dreamed was of the evening when, with Florence on his arm, he should reenter the old mess hall, which he had not visited since it was bravely decked for the 28th of August hop, the year of his marriage. He had promised to take her thither for the graduating ball, and had pictured her as the belle of the occasion, sought eagerly by the cadets as their partner for waltz or "two-step"; and, as in his eyes she was the most perfect creature that ever lived or moved, his one anxiety was lest the boys in gray, always susceptible, should forget that Floy was only a child and fall in love with her forthwith. It never occurred to him as a possibility that Floy in her turn might fall in love. But there was no delicious visit for Florence to the Point that year. The moment examinations were over at school her mother started with her for the far west, and Tremaine met them at Santa Fe Junction. Then, after one brief week at Sedgwick, they had started for the cantonment, and there had led their uneventful life until the coming of Randy Merriam, prostrate, with the days of another June. And now, while Florence was in tears and hiding in her pretty room above stairs, this errand, erring, invalid warrior, with no word or sign of being himself sorely heart-smitten, was determinedly talking of going back forthwith to the mountain trails. Tremaine would not let his beloved helpmeet speak, either to Florence or to Merriam, but he fully meant to say more words than one to Merriam himself, and then he thought him of Dalrymple, and the famous creek, that doughty major donned whenever he sallied forth to ask the intentions of O'Malley's dashing light dragoons, and this reflection gave him pause. If, either by accident or design, the heart of his precious child had become wrapped up in Merriam, then Merriam should not leave the post without an explanation. But there was yet time. It might be that the poor fellow was really sore smitten himself, and that the tender but unconquered heart of his daughter was touched with pity for his suffering.

Meantime the culprit officer himself had been carefully lifted into the doctor's buggy, and with that excellent practitioner was enjoying a drive. The one thing Wells could not understand was that, while his patient rapidly gained in health, flesh and appetite, he seemed so doped in spirits. Not one word had he been told of Merriam's broken engagement, beyond what Mrs. Tremaine had imparted, and she could give but scanty information. Merriam was grateful for all the care and attention lavished upon him, grateful for returning strength, for sunshine, fresh air, and the brisk drive along the shores of the winding Catamount, but Merriam was silent, smiled but seldom, and laughed not at all. Merriam was plainly troubled, and that night, when Mrs. Tremaine asked her friend, the doctor, how his patient enjoyed the drive, that gentleman replied that if it did him good he gave no sign. "I believe," said he, "that Merriam is in love, and that's why I cannot understand his eagerness to get back to his troop." And the mother leaped with hope. She, too, had had other plans for Florence than that she should marry a subaltern officer; but if by chance Floy had chosen for herself and fallen in love with one, it could not have been without some persuasion, some pleading on his part. It must be that he was the first to love and to plainly show it.

That night Florence was very quiet. She read aloud to her father, as was her custom, and clung to him as he kissed her good-night. Merriam had gone early to his room, as though fatigued by the drive or rendered drowsy by the unaccustomed motion in the air. Somewhere about three in the morning there was an unusual sound of voices in excited talk near the guardhouse, and Tremaine awoke and was dressing hurriedly, when rapid steps came up the walk, and the sergeant of the guard, with a dust-covered courier, stood at his door. They bore a note from Whitaker. A serious row had occurred between some of the troop and a party of miners and prospectors who had been camping near them for three days. Pistols were drawn, with the result that one miner was killed, two troopers and one prospector were seriously, perhaps mortally, wounded, and several others were injured. Could Dr. Wells come out to them at once for a few hours, at least, as was Merriam able to ride? The young prospector who was so seriously wounded had begged to see him, as he had important information for him, and bade them tell Mr. Merriam that his name was McLane, a son of the man who was about to marry Miss Hayward. A penciled note in a closed envelope accompanied the verbal message for Merriam.

Florence, listening at her half-open door as the captain read Whitaker's dispatch aloud to her mother, shrank back to her bedside, covered her face with her hands and sank to her knees. It was thus she was found a few moments later. Merriam, aroused by the unaccustomed sounds, had lighted his candle and, partially dressed, came forth into the broad hallway of the commanding officer's quarters, and Tremaine met and gave him the message and the note, which latter Randy tore open and read with staring eyes. For a moment he stood confounded, then turned sharply to Tremaine: "Now, sir, I've got to go, and go at once—when Wells does," then turned and hurried to his room.

The captain himself aroused his post surgeon, told him the news, and bade him see and quiet Merriam as soon as possible. The dawn was breaking, and the rosy light was in the eastern sky when the doctor reached his patient, finding him fully dressed and rapidly stowing in his saddle-bags the simple articles of a soldier's toilet.

"This won't do, Randy. You're not fit to stir," said he. But his determination oozed when Merriam, with white face, turned and said:

"More than my life's at stake here, doctor—it's a woman's honor, and I'm going, live or die."

CHAPTER IV.

Strange to say, the journey back to the Mesacero seemed to benefit rather than injure Merriam. The doctor vainly endeavored to restrain him—to induce him to shorten the long days' marches, but Merriam declared he was never so well as when in the saddle, and that nothing wearied him so much as waiting. If anything, he seemed less jaded than his physician when, on the third day, they reached the bivouac of the little command, and Billy Whitaker welcomed them to a supper of bacon and frijoles, and calmed Merriam's feverish impatience by the news that the civilian who had so desired to see him was still alive, conscious, but sinking rather than gaining. The miners' camp was a mile away. The dead had been buried, and the feud dropped with the brief prayers with which the bullet-riddled body was consigned to earth. Wells' first duty lay with the two troopers, who were in bitter plight, and no morsel of food passed his lips until he had ministered to them. Then Merriam had to wait until he had swallowed some coffee, and then, taking Whitaker with them, they rode forward to a branch of the canyon, where at nightfall they came in view of the fires of the little camp. Wells made prompt examination of the wounded man, and came out from the rude shelter under which he lay, glanced at Whitaker and shook his head. Presently, with a dazed look on his face, Merriam reappeared. "Billie," said he, "stand here and see that there are no eavesdroppers. I know some of his poor fellow's people, and he has messages to send." The two or three hangers-on took the hint and slouched away. "I may need you to witness his statement later," he whispered. "Come in if I call, but let no one else hear us."

For half an hour the low murmur of voices came from within the "black," as darkness settled down upon the scene. Then both Wells and Whitaker were summoned, and by the dim light of a camp lantern they knelt beside the pallet of the dying man. "You know both these gentlemen, by reputation, at least," said Merriam, gently, though his eyes were gleaming, his lips quivering, and his hands trembling with some strong and strange emotion. "In their presence I desire you to read over this statement that I have written from your dictation. If it's entirely right, say so, sign it, and they will witness your signature, but will have no knowledge of its contents."

For a few minutes hardly a sound save the deep breathing of three powerful, soldierly men and the feeble gasping of the sufferer broke the stillness of the rude shelter. The wounded man lay propped on Merriam's shoulder, but, through weakness from his long illness and the mental excitement of the moment, the latter's trembling grew so marked that Whitaker quickly slipped his left arm under the drooping head and drew his friend away. McLane seemed to gain strength from the vigor of this new support, though he could do no more than whisper thanks. Presently he beckoned to Merriam and pointed to a line on the page.

"I said she was over 43—" he began, then Merriam's hand was slipped over his mouth.

"I'll make any corrections you wish, but do not speak of what is there," said he, and with his fountain pen he erased a word and wrote another. Then the sufferer nodded. "It is all right now," he whispered, and, taking the pen, was lifted to a half-sitting posture and feebly, scratchily wrote as follows: "John Harold McLane, Jr., aged 25; born June 1, 1867, Sacramento, Cal. Died June —, 1892, Mesacero mountains, N. M." Then, dropping the pen, he fell back to his rude pillow, panting and exhausted. Wells quickly gave him stimulant; then he and Whitaker affixed their names as witnesses. A moment later, while the surgeon remained with his patient, the two young officers clasped hands outside.

"You're weak as a child yet, Randy. What is it, old boy?"

"My God! I can't afford to be weak now," was the fierce answer. "I've got to act—to do as I never did before. How long should it take our best rider, our lightest rider, to reach the railway? Telegrams must go east at once."

"If he take the back trail—the one you came in by from Sedgwick—five days and nights, least count. If he go around by the cantonment for fresh horses, perhaps seven."

"My God! my God!" cried Merriam. "Even two days may be too long. You're in command, Billy. I can give no orders, but that courier must start before moonrise to-night. Don't ask me to tell you why."

And within the hour, with a sealed packet addressed to Capt. Lawrence Hayne, —th infantry, Fort Sedgwick, a slim little Irish trooper was loping, all alone, faintly back toward the valley of the Bravo, smacking his lips in anticipation of the good liquor awaiting him at Santa Fe Junction the moment his duty was done. Five days and nights had he before him of lonely ride through a desolate, almost desert land, stopping only when necessary to feed and water and rub down his horse, build his little fire and cook his slab of bacon and brew the battered pot of coffee, and snatch such sleep under the stars as was possible, braving Indians, rattlesnakes or mountain lions without a tremor, for the sake of an Irishman's pride in his troop, his love of dangerous duty and his full assurance of a good time at the journey's end.

"Do not speak of what is there."

Another day and a rude grave was dug in the canyon, and the doctor read the simple service of the church over the shrouded form of the young prospector; and then, against that doctor's wishes, but not without his reluctant consent, Lieut. Merriam, with an escort of two troopers, started in person to ride by the shortest trail to Sedgwick.

It was now the 6th of June. It would take him nearly a week to reach and cross the Santa Clara. It might take him eight days to Sedgwick, and every hour seemed a day. Meantime Dr. Wells set about having litters made for the two wounded troopers, and by the tenth of the month had them safely in hospital at the cantonment. He found Tremaine looking anxious, even angry. Mrs. Tremaine troubled on more than one account, apparently, and Florence pale and languid.

"Did Mr. Merriam send no letter?" asked Mrs. Tremaine, after he had told something of their experiences. "There was no time to write. He begged me to give you his love and gratitude, to give it to all, and to say he would write in full the moment he got to Sedgwick. Oh, yes, he is better—much better, but the nervous strain may bring on a return of the fever," said the doctor. Something of solemn consequence, Wells knew not what, had carried Merriam back to the railway. He might have to go east at once. But Randy never reached the railway. Hayne received and read in startled amazement the contents of the packet brought by the courier, and sent at once from the Junction two telegraphic messages—one to Mr. Ned Parry, of the firm of Graeme, Rayburn & Parry, of Chicago; the other to Mr. Abraham Mellen, New York city; —received from the latter neither acknowledgment nor reply, and from the former the brief words: "The marriage took place 48 hours ago."

Without any delay, taking only a single orderly, Capt. Hayne rode away northwestward, past the Santa Clara, past the old Mission, and so mountainward until the blue barrier of the Mesacero turned to gray and green, and, almost within its shadows, just as the second setting sun dropped behind its massive crest, he met the trio from the Catamount—Merriam, a haggard, but determined rider, far in the lead. There was no time for salutation.

"What answer?" demanded the lieutenant, abruptly and with wide, burning, bloodshot eyes.

"Too late," said Hayne, "too late by 48 hours."

"You don't mean," gasped Merriam, "that they are married already?"

"That's what Parry wires," was the brief response. "Here's the dispatch."

For a moment Merriam sat in saddle, a dazed, stupefied look in his bloodless face. Then his eyes closed and he seemed about to swoon. Hayne sprang from his panting horse just as Merriam's wearied escorts came lumbering to the spot. Together they lifted him from his seat and bore him to a little patch of grass, bathed his temples from their canteens and gave him a goulte of cognac. They made what frontier troops call a "dry camp" that night, just there where the two parties met. There was fuel, a little grass, but no water beyond what they had in their canteens, and with the contents of one of these Hayne brewed a pot of tea while one of the men cooked their frugal supper. They needed no other canopy than that of the heavens in that rare, dry atmosphere, and with the stars for night lights and the waning moon to peep in upon their slumbers later and start the gaun, coyotes at their querulous, unguarded serenade, the troopers slept, or seemed to sleep, until dawn. Twice Hayne awoke to find Merriam staring with burning eyes at the radiant vault aloft, but he wanted nothing, needed nothing: He could not sleep for thinking, he explained, and when the morning came the fever was with him again, and Corporal Tracy galloped northward along the foothills, a long day's ride, to fetch once more the doctor from the cantonment, and with Wells came the ambulance. The cantonment lay 50 miles away to the north, Sedgwick a hundred to the southeast. It was the neurest port in the storm.

This time Tremaine would have had fitted up for him a room in the big, airy hospital, but his better-half intervened. "It would never do after our having had him here before," she said. "He must have his old room under our roof and everything he had before—except Florence."

But when, after ten days of burning fever and desperate illness, Randolph Merriam seemed again to realize where he was, and how weak he was, and how good they had been to him, the first name he whispered, the first thing he asked for, looked for, seemed to long for was Florence—and they let her come.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

An Actor Who Was Equal to the Occasion.

It will be remembered that in the farcical comedy, "Never Again," at the very end of the play, the stage is suddenly darkened just as the schoolmaster and his wife return. The object in darkening it is to get rid of this pair of detestable bores. The people are all on the stage, but, of course, the darkness hides them.

The schoolmaster's voice is heard at one of the entrances.

"Oh, they have all gone home," he says, "the room is dark."

Then he and his tiresome wife go away and the lights are turned up, disclosing the rest of the company scattered about the stage.

At a recent matinee one of the rear windows of the opera house stage happened to be without a shade. When the electric lights were turned out a sudden ray of sunshine streamed through this window and made the stage as bright as day.

At the proper entrance appeared the schoolmaster. Probably he was stumped when he saw the stage, but he concealed his feelings.

"Ha!" he calmly said, "they have nearly all gone home—the room is almost dark!"

Then he made his exit and the electric lights chased the sunlight from the boards.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Parting Admonition.

The following amusing passage took place between counsel and witness in a disputed will case.

"Did your father give you no parting admonition?"

"He never gave much away at any time."

"I mean to say what were his last words?"

"They don't concern you."

"They not only concern me, sir," said the barrister severely, "but they concern the whole court."

"Oh, all right," was the reply. Father said, 'Don't have no trouble when I'm gone, Jim, 'cos lawyers is the biggest thieves unboss.'—Leisure Hours.

An Apt Quoter.

A student had been up for examination in Scripture, and failed so utterly that the examiner got exasperated. Finally the latter asked him if there was any text in the whole Bible he could quote. The student pondered and then repeated: "And Judas went out and hanged himself." "Is there any other verse you know in the Bible?" the examiner asked. "Yes; Go thou and do likewise." There was a solemn pause, and the examination ended right there.—Golden Days.

The Shortest Line and

CORN SHOCKING TOOL.

It is a Temporary Binder to Hold the Bunch Together While It is Being Tied.

R. B. Amstutz, of Birmingham, O., gives the readers of the New York Tribune the benefit of a device which he has tried with gratifying results in shocking corn. He says that one difficulty that is experienced in tying with twine is that the shock is apt to be bound too loosely, and then it will not stand well. He aims, therefore, to provide a way for getting a good squeeze on the bundle before tying.

Mr. Amstutz says: "Take an old broom handle a foot shorter than the length of twine to be used. At one end make a hole through which you can put a strip of leather, whereby to attach a piece of rope to the stick. The rope should be about four inches shorter than the twine. A quarter-inch rope is the best size. At the other end of the rope fasten a ring just big enough to slip over the stick easily. In use proceed as follows: Take the handle and ring in one hand, reach around the shock, pass the ring into the other hand, and then slip the butt end of the handle into the ring. Now, shove the ring along the handle down to the leather, turn the handle out away from the side of the shock, and it will stay there while you deliberately put the twine around and tie. Throw the handle back, release the ring, and go to the next shock." Mr. Amstutz believes that he is the originator of this device, but he is willing that others should use it without charge.

World's Deficit in Grain.

A world's deficit in grain for the coming year is the forecast of the Hungarian minister of agriculture. He estimates that importing countries will need 115,000,000 to 124,000,000 metric centners, or, roughly speaking, 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels more than their own output, and that exporting countries will be able to send 101,000,000 to 109,000,000 metric centners, an apparent deficit of 14,000,000 to 15,000,000, or say 60,000,000 bushels. This report, emanating each year at this time from what is known as the Vienna grain congress, is made up from a comparison of official and trade estimates of the world's production and requirements. The figures put forth are by no means final, nor of any great value, although interesting, as they seem to reflect general conditions.

How to Pickle Pork.

Some one recently called for a recipe for pickling pork. Here is one that we find good: Salt enough to take out the blood and let it stand two or three days. For every 100 pounds of meat take ten pounds of salt, four pounds of Orleans sugar, three-quarters ounce of saltpeter, two ounces of soda and eight gallons of water. Boil, strain and let cool. Then pour over the meat. Let it stay in pickle at least six weeks. Keep the meat well under pickle, but be careful not to weight it too heavy. If the pickle should not be enough to cover you will have to make enough as proportioned above. This will depend somewhat upon the shape of your vessel.—A. S. Watson, in American Cultivator.

Flax with Other Grain.

Under some conditions it may be advisable to grow flax with other grain. Flax is a very exhaustive crop, but in this fact lies the advantage when grain is sown on very rich land in mixing some flaxseed with it. If the flax is not grown the grain will grow too rank a straw, while with the flax to help exhaust the superfluous fertility there is less danger of this. There will be more of the grain grown, while all of the flaxseed that is harvested will be so much clear gain. Barley is one of the best grains to grow with flax, and both are ready to cut at the same time. But both should be very lightly seeded if clover seed is sown the same spring, else there will be a poor catch of clover.—American Cultivator.

When Horses Have Heaves.

There is no cure for heaves; it can only be ameliorated or lessened in extent by feeding on nutritive material in small bulk, and more frequent rations. All voluminous and coarse food should be avoided, such as timothy, millet and clover hay, and only the best wild hay given in small quantities, preferably finely cut, mixed with mill feed or steamed food. Feed everything wet. Food and water should be consumed at least an hour before an animal is used for work. It is but natural that such a horse will become weak and faint when driven or worked hard all day, for such a one is only capable of performing slow and light work, and it is cruel to use him otherwise.—Rural World.

To make dividing a success, colonies should be very strong and almost ready to swarm. Use the best combs for brood nest and the oldest and roughest on the outside for storage.

LAMBS FOR MUTTON.

Something About the Breeds and How to Obtain the Most Satisfactory Results.

Probably the fattest sent to market are those obtained from a cross of Merino and Southdown. They are about as plump and heavy for their size as any bred, although they are not the largest, writes E. P. Smith in the American Cultivator. They are generally desired by good butchers, and very often they will command fancy prices. Their Southdown lineage will be apparent in their black faces and legs, and most butchers believe yet, and with good reason, that the "Southdown" is the finest mutton sheep in the world.

But the Merino contributes many noteworthy qualities. The lambs get their fatness and tenderness from the Merino, and this greatly helps the lambs in the markets. Altogether the cross produces about as satisfactory results for the general breeder of lambs for mutton as any.

The lambs when two weeks old should be taught to eat a little dry food, and this can best be given to them with the hand. Sometimes a tempting dish can be made for the lambs—a mixture of clean oats, corn and linseed in equal parts, ground up finely and then salted and sweetened with a little sugar. The taste of the latter tempts the lambs. The ewes should also be fed freely and with good nourishing food to keep up the flow of milk, for it is advisable for the lambs to have plenty of the mother's milk.

In a short time the lambs will take their dry feed from a box or pan, and then feeding them will be greatly simplified. Ordinarily it is not necessary to get them to take dry food, but where it is desirable to force their growth, and make them lay on fat rapidly, this method will be found very satisfactory. The lambs that grow vigorously from the first are the ones that pay in the end, and it would not prove a bad plan to adopt this method, even though one has no idea of forcing the lambs for an early market.

CORN FOR CHICKENS.

Poultry Thrives Most Excellently Upon It Until It Has Made Its Full Growth.

Without doubt, the very best feed for a flock of growing chickens is corn, just whole corn fed to them in unlimited quantities. If the chickens have the range of the farm they will not eat more corn than they need, and the more they can be induced to eat the faster they will grow. They get enough grass, bugs, weed and grass seeds when running about to balance the corn ration, and it is one of the best feeds that can be given them.

The laying hens should not have so much corn, so this advice should not be taken without the hens can be kept from eating with the growing chickens, for a laying hen fed all the corn she can eat will soon get too lazy to forage much, and in the end will get so fat that she will be inclined to take a rest from laying and become an unprofitable servant.

All the young poultry thrives on corn until it has made its full growth. There is nothing better for young poultry than sweet corn from the time it gets to be good roasting ears until the winter sets in. While this is being fed the fowls will make weight in quite a surprising way, and they are very fond of it. There is no need to prepare it in any way. They will take care of it if the ears are husked and thrown to them. If with the sweet corn a supply of sunflowers is available the fowls will not only grow but their plumage will become glossy and their combs red, and they will be pictures of health. The man who raises poultry and fails to have a supply of sweet corn and sunflower seeds for them is missing an opportunity to provide the best feed that can be grown on the farm.—Farmers' Voice.

CORN-HUSKING HORSE.

It Will Help Many a Lame Back If You Conclude to Build One Right Now.

The horse is made of light material. The cut explains itself. The rung B should be 1 1/4-inch stuff, put in with shoulders cut down to one inch where it goes through the legs. The rung is put down so the ears of corn will not catch when pulled forward. Corn-husking makes lame backs and sore hands. The horse will help the back and the following recipe will help the hands: Take white wax, one-quarter ounce, spermaceti, one-quarter ounce; almond oil, one ounce; glycerine, two ounces. Mix, melt the wax and stir in the oils until they are perfectly mixed and still continue to stir until cool. Apply to the hands two or three times a day. Wash the hands in warm water and apply the salve while the hands are still quite damp, and rub them until dry. It will keep them from getting sore. The prescription only costs 20 cents for ingredients.—Ohio Farmer.

SNAKE REUNITED THEM.

Separated Relatives Are at Last Brought Together by a Well-Toiled Yarn.

Hon. Eben Heaton, president of the board of county commissioners at Lawrenceburg, Ind., has discovered long-separated relatives, and a family reunion will take place at the old Heaton homestead, near Moore's Hill, next month.

Several weeks since the Cincinnati Enquirer contained an account of Mr. Heaton's killing a large blacksnake that had been about his premises for almost two decades. Mrs. Albert Small, a lady of 78 years, was visiting from a distant state with a daughter at Bluffton, Ind. Mrs. Small read an account of the snake, and Heaton being her maiden name concluded to write to the Dearborn county official concerning his ancestry, and inclosed the clipping in explanation of her writing. Correspondence followed, and Mrs. Small proved to be the aged aunt of Mr. Heaton, whom he had not seen since 1831, when the family had become separated and scattered and all traces of each other lost. The discovery of these kindred enabled them to complete a broken chain in the family history and will assist in the closing up of a long unsettled estate that has grown into value.

LAW IS INCOMPLETE.

New Regulations for the Indian Territory Will Be Formulated.

The interior department is experiencing some difficulty in carrying out the provisions of the Curtis act, revising the laws of Indian territory. It provides among other things that all annuities, royalties, etc., shall be paid the residents of the territory by the secretary of the interior, but does not make appropriation to defray expenses incurred in this work. This and other provisions of the bill, it is said, undoubtedly will be amended by congress. The secretary of the interior, who now holds practically the position of governor of the territory, will soon make public regulations carrying into effect the Curtis act. Superintendent Wright, who has been sent to the territory to investigate conditions there, will make a report to the secretary and the information secured in this way may be used in formulating the regulations.

PREDICTS COAL STRIKE.

Manager Young, of Mark Hanna's Coal Company, Says Biggest Strike Ever Seen Will Be On Next Year.

In an interview Manager Young, of the M. A. Hanna Coal company, is quoted as saying:

"In the early part of next year we will have one of the greatest coal strikes this country has ever seen. All indications are, that the strike will last many months.

"The miners stand at all times ready to fight against a reduction of wages. When the Chicago contract expires, or possibly before that time, they will be obliged to accept a reduction of 15 to 16 cents per ton or fight. I think they will fight, and will fight harder than they ever have before.

"The West Virginia miners are working cheaper than they ever have before. All efforts on the part of the other miners to organize them have been in vain. There is no hope that they will be brought into line."

STUNG TO DEATH BY BEES.

Port Jervis (N. Y.) Horse Dies from a Thousand Stings of the Little Tormentors.

The sting of bees resulted in the death of a horse belonging to Charles Winters, near Monticello, N. Y. Coming in too close proximity to a hive in his pasture the animal was stung by one of the bees, and in his efforts to free himself from the bee he kicked and overturned the hive. In a minute the horse was rolling on the ground suffering from a thousand stings, and in less than two hours was dead.

A SOLDIER'S ESCAPE.

From the Democrat-Messenger, Mt. Sterling, Ill.

When Richmond had fallen and the great commanders had met beneath the historic apple tree at Appomattox, the 83d Pennsylvania Volunteers, prematurely aged, clad in tatters and rags, broken in body but of dauntless spirit, swung into line for the last "grand review," and then quietly marched away to begin life afire anew amid the hills and valleys of the Keystone State. Among the number was Robinson, came back to the old home in Mt. Sterling, Ill., back to the fireside that he had left at the call to arms four years previous. He went away a happy, healthy farmer boy in the first flush of vigorous manhood; he came back a ghost of the self that answered to President Lincoln's call for "300,000 more."

To-day he is an alert, active man and tells the story of his recovery as follows:

"I was a great sufferer from sciatica rheumatism almost from the time of my discharge from the army. Most of the time I was unfit for manual labor of any kind, and my sufferings were at all times intense. At times I was bent almost double, and got around only with the greatest difficulty. Nothing seemed to give me permanent relief until three years ago, when my attention was called to some of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had not taken more than half a box when I noticed an improvement in my condition, and I kept on improving steadily. I took three boxes of the pills, and at the end of that time was in better condition than at any time since the close of my army service. Since then I have never been bothered with the rheumatism. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the only remedy that ever did me any good, and to all I owe my restoration to comparative health. They are a grand remedy."

THE PROPER USE.

Hardtack Converted Into a Durable Souvenir of the War with Spain.

She was a collector of souvenirs. The young man who had just returned from the war could not refuse to slight a request. All she wanted was something by which to remember the campaign in Cuba. He was about to respond in the usual romantic fashion and offer himself, when she interposed:

"All I desire is some worthless trifle that will remind me of the hardships you went through in defense of liberty."

"How would one of the buttons off my uniform do?" he inquired.

"No, I want something that was associated with you in your daily routine of life; not a mark that would designate any and all of Uncle Sam's soldiers. I want to hang it in the parlor and preserve it forever."

"It must be indestructible, then?"

"Well, the more nearly so, of course, the better."

He was lost in meditation for some minutes. Then, with brightening countenance, he exclaimed:

"How thoughtless it was of me not to realize it before! I have the very thing. I've carried it for weeks in my pocket over my heart as a piece of armor plate. You can take this hardtack and paint a little landscape on it and let it hang on the wall for the next century. Now that the war is over I'm glad to see it put to some legitimate use. It will make a lovely plaque."

Washington Star.

Stop! Women,

And Consider the All-Important Fact,

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience in treating women's diseases is greater than that of any living physician—male or female.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides, a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman, whose knowledge from actual experience is greater than any local physician in the world. The following invitation is freely offered; accept it in the same spirit:

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

"The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women a year."

KNOWLEDGE ENOUGH.

Although She Was from Boston She Cared Not for a Higher Subject Than Beans.

Notwithstanding her nose turned up, there were specs on it, and she was from Boston, which may be considered to be competent testimony that heredity isn't everything. She was visiting in Brooklyn before the hot spell and the first young man she met was one who prides himself on his intellectuality. Whether anyone else does or not is another story. As it happened, the young man had an opportunity shortly after the meeting to talk with the young woman alone, and he did not fail to throw a few brains at her.

"Ah, Miss Sophia," he said, with a soulful yearn in his gentle voice, "I presume you attend several of the numerous schools of philosophy in which Boston is so rich and Brooklyn is so poor?"

"I am sorry," she hesitated, "but really, Mr. Blank, I do not attend any."

"Indeed, and do you feel no interest in any of the concepts of modern philosophic thought?"

"None whatever, I fear," and she really seemed to be sorry to have been so careless of her golden, glorious opportunities.

"And does not the subjective idealism of existence in delightful Boston so profoundly affect the reality of your ego?"

"So far I have not observed that it did," she said, apologetically.

"How can it be possible?" he exclaimed. "The sphere of your knowledge must be far wider than it is with us."

"No," she answered, measuring her words carefully. "I should say it was not. Don't you know as long as we Bostonians know beans when the bag's open we don't worry over much about the rest of it. Why should we? Isn't that enough for us to know?"

It is a singular fact, but none the less true, that in England in the year 1700 women were not allowed to wear calico dresses at all, and in 1721 a penalty or fine of £5 was laid upon the wearer, and the unfortunate dealer who sold calico in those days had to pay a penalty of £100 for the offense. It is hardly necessary to say that no one of them ever undertook to sell more than one dress pattern. The women of this country may bless their lucky stars that nothing has ever interfered with their privilege to buy and wear calico to their heart's content. Moreover, they can be thankful that they are able to purchase the best quality the world produces right here at home. The goods of one firm are especially sought after by both consumers and dealers and their recognized superiority is assured when the name William Simpson & Sons is found on the ticket. At least that is what the ladies and the storekeepers say, and they ought to know.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS FINE

Unshaken Confidence.

"It's always pretty safe to judge a man by the company he keeps."

"I don't know. There are exceptions. My Uncle John's business makes it necessary for him to associate with admen a good deal, and still I'd trust him with every dollar I've got in the world.—Chicago Evening News.

A Shattered Nervous System.

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.
Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MR. EDWARD HARDY, the local manager of Sheppard Co.'s great store at Bracerville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until in 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It gave me relief from the start, and at last a cure, the greatest blessing of my life."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle free, or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address: DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

As Was Done Unto Him.

Catching at the stranger's coat-tail he murmured in a deprecating tone "Could you give me a little assistance sir?" The stranger turned and looked him over. His eyes were bloodshot his clothes dirty his whole appearance decided the worse for wear.

"What do you want?" was the reply to the tramp.

"A job after I get a square meal," said the tramp.

"What can you do?" asked the stranger.

"I can keep books, sell goods, drive a delivery wagon, compound prescriptions, set type and do farm work."

The stranger scribbled a few words on a card, handed the tramp $1 and said: "Take this card to this address, and I think it will get you work. Take that dollar, get a bath, a shave, a hair cut, something to eat and a drink of whisky. That will brace you to meet my friend. So long!"

"There's just one thing more," said the tramp. "How do you happen to give me just $1 and all these directions with it?"

"Because I got $1 from a man on this very corner about ten years ago," said the stranger, "just as you are getting it from me, and I'm passing up his advice and his money just for luck."—Chicago Chronicle.

Bedtime In Canada.

Any one who has visited Canada realizes the difference between Yankee hustling and the easy going way to do things up there. "I should love to go visiting in Canada," says a tired wanderer, "if the people there ever went to bed."

"They never go to bed, and they never get up," commented a Hibernian who had been there.

Something must be wrong with the old axiom of how to be healthy, wealthy and wise, for the first at least these Canadians are, and they rarely go to bed much before midnight, nor breakfast much before 9 o'clock. It is an old country custom handed down and comfortably enjoyed. The 9:30 p. m. bedtime of American domesticity is there unknown, and the 7:30 breakfast belongs solely to the lowest laboring classes.

"Oh, yes, I feel splendid this morning. I got to bed early and had a good sleep," said a young man, who had been complaining of weariness and lack of rest. "What time did you retire?" asked the inquisitive American. "Oh, real early," was the reply. "Soon after the clock had struck 12."—Troy Times.

The Astute Lion.

One day a toothless lion, whose muscles were unstrung by age, lay in a shady place by the streamlet side.

He set up a dismal growling, which soon drew a crowd of hyenas around him.

"What is the matter?" they asked.

He explained to them that the days of his kingship were over, and with tears pouring down his face protested that he was unable to defend himself against even the weakest of his enemies.

On learning this the hypocritical sympathy before shown by the hyenas changed at once to open malice. They threw themselves upon the prostrate monarch and worried him with their teeth.

Inside of five minutes they all lay rigid in death.

"Golly," chuckled the lion, "I'm glad I took the precaution to dust my hide with strychnine before I tested the kindness of these good friends. A fellow learns something by having been in politics."

So saying he calmly went to sleep.—Criterion.

His Worst Offense.

When it was proposed to lessen the list of crimes punished by death, Lord Eldon objected to the noose being banished in cases of petty shoplifting.

"The small shopkeepers will be ruined by this exemption," said the old Tory lord chancellor.

Another Tory, a judge, so venerated the sovereign that he included in his regard any article belonging to the king, no matter how far removed from actual possession. A tailor had been condemned for the murder of a soldier, and the judge tacked on this addition to the sentence of death:

"And not only did you murder him, but you did thrust or push or pierce or project or propel the lethal weapon through the belly band of his breeches, which were his majesty's!"

Past Salaries of Actors.

A number of autograph letters of Edmund Kean supply some interesting information about the salaries of actors early in the century. One relates to an offer by Mr. Ellison offering Kean £3 a week as acting manager of "the new theater in Wych street."

Later this rose as high as £25 a month. In 1826 Kean was offered $12,000 a year to go to America. In the prime of his popularity he received £200 for a week in Edinburgh, and apparently reached the highest point when Mr. Bunni wrote from the Theater Royal, Dublin, on Feb. 8, 1829, and offered him £50 a night to play in Dublin and Cork.—Liverpool Mercury.

Life of a Battleship.

Naval experts have put down the active life of a modern battleship at about 15 years. A hundred years ago battleships lasted nearly six times as long and were on active service nearly the whole time of their commission. The Victory, for instance, was 40 years old when she acted as Nelson's flagship at the memorable battle of Trafalgar. A line of battle ship, the Royal William, was built at Chatham in 1670 and was not broken up until 1813, being rebuilt several times before her final demise.

The Laplanders drink a great deal of smoked snow water, and one of the national drinks of the Tonquinese is arrack flavored with chickens' blood.

The sacred crocodiles of Egypt were buried with her proudest kings.

MATRIMONIAL.

"Oh, Mildred, I'm so glad you have called! I'm in great trouble. That dreadful husband of mine! Oh, my heart will break! I know it will!"

Mrs. Mosely's young spinster friend closed the sitting room door of the pretty Kensington flat and prepared for a revelation of matrimonial tyranny and iniquity.

"Read that!" cried Mrs. Mosely, holding out at arm's length a newspaper with her thumb nail pressed viciously into one corner of an advertisement column and then bursting into fresh tears.

Mildred Clarke read as follows:

"Matrimony.—Bachelor, 35, going to the colonies, tall, dark, educated and well connected, with fair income, desires the acquaintance of a healthy, domesticated and refined young lady with a view to marriage. Address 'Carlo,' Guilford Chambers, Leadenhall Street, E. C."

"Why, your husband's offices are at Guilford chambers!"

"Yes—the monster. And he is 35 years of age and tall and dark, and he has had the brutality to use the pet name 'Carlo,' by which I have always called him. Oh, the wretched bigamist!"

"But it is impossible that he can contemplate committing such a crime."

"I am sure he is bad enough for anything. Only the day before yesterday, just because I said I wished I had never seen his face—he was so provoking in consequence of the eggs being boiled hard—he said that if I really meant it he would go abroad and start life again in one of the colonies. It shows that his mind was running on deserting me. Oh, Mildred, what can I do?"

"I hardly know, dear. It looks serious."

"Have you any scheme in your mind, Mildred?"

"Yes. First of all, we will answer the advertisement in person."

"In person?"

"Fortunately I have never yet succeeded in meeting your husband, so he doesn't know me. You shall accompany me as a friend, for propriety's sake, in disguise, you know."

An hour later two ladies were shown into the private office of Mr. Mosely.

"Are you the gentleman who has advertised under the name 'Carlo'?" asked Mildred.

"Er—yes, but replies should be made by letter."

"I thought a personal interview might be more satisfactory than a letter in a case of this kind. I hope I'm—"

"Oh, not at all. I'm sure I am only too delighted to have the opportunity of—"

"I suppose I may take it that you are yourself an applicant—ahem! that you are interested in the matter on your own account?"

"Quite so. It occurred to me that—"

"You find the position embarrassing? It certainly is rather comical. But let us treat the matter in a businesslike way. I presume this lady is—"

"My friend. You may speak as if we were alone."

"Well, then, you will have learned from the advertisement that I am 35 years of age and a bachelor."

"I am going to Australia next month, and it is my desire, if I am lucky enough to find a suitable lady who is willing to marry me, to take out an English wife with me. I shall be able to produce satisfactory proofs, I think, of my position, good character and income."

"May I at least hope," he went on, "that you will give me some encouragement and that—good heavens, my wife has fainted!"

He ran forward and caught her in his arms. The words "my wife" told Mildred in a flash that Mr. Mosely had known Ethel all the time in her disguise.

"Ethel, darling," he cried as his wife opened her eyes, "it's all a joke. I know you all the time. The advertisement is for a friend of mine. How can you doubt my faithfulness, little wife?"

"Oh, Carlo! It isn't true, is it? You are not going to desert me? But how did you recognize me, Carlo?" Mrs. Mosely asked.

"I principally by that uncommon bangle which you forgot to take off. I had been thinking what you would be likely to do if you happened to see the advertisement. Then the general public would not know that 'Carlo' was likely to be found at Mr. Mosely's office rather than at one of the 60 other offices in this building. Finally you seem to have forgotten that, though I had never before met Miss Mildred Clarke, her photograph is in your album!"

"But I must ask you," said Mrs. Mosely severely, "to give me an explanation as to the real 'Carlo.'"

"He is an old schoolfellow of mine. We drew up the advertisement together, and I let him use this address. I adopted the word 'Carlo' for the simple reason that one word would seem as well as another, and 'Carlo' occurred to me first. The bachelor's name is Herbert Carter. You shall see him."

Mr. Mosely rang his bell.

A tall and handsome man entered and was presented to the two ladies.

"Miss Clarke, I may tell you," said Mr. Mosely, "has called in reply to your advertisement."

Mildred blushed and attempted an indignant denial, but the curious fact remains that in the following month she went out to Australia as Mrs. Herbert Carter.—Philadelphia Item.

The Streets of Ancient Athens.

It has been said that the streets of Athens, when the city was the center of attraction of the intellectual world, resembled those of Bulgarian and Turkish towns by their narrowness and irregularity. Strangers, when they first walked along them, used to be in doubt whether they could have arrived in so famous a city. Owing to the labors of the members of the German Archaeological Institute it has become certain that Athens possessed one street at least which was tolerably wide.

It was laid out between the Dipylon at the wall on the northwest and the Agora, and was therefore north of the Thesolon. The width of the roadway was about 10 meters, or 33 feet. As the Greeks, with all their ability, had not Macadam's shrewdness, the ancient street was made up of layers of earth, which required repairs constantly. One reason for the exceptional breadth was that originally a brook ran along one side, and when it was covered over the additional space was allowed to increase the road.—London Architect.

Rifled Firearms.

In the South Kensington museum are several wheel lock muskets with rifled barrels made during the reign of Charles I. if not earlier. Such barrels were then usually called "screwed."

Zachary Grey, in a note on "Hudibras," part I, canto III, line 533, says that Prince Rupert showed his skill as a marksman by hitting twice in succession the vane on St. Mary's Stafford at 60 yards with a "screwed" pistol.—Notes and Queries.
